BENEFIT FOR THE LOCAL SHOPMEN

The Ogden Trades and Labor Assembly were hosts at a benefit party given in the New Colonial last night for the families of the striking shopmen.

About 300 persons joined in the dancing and aided the committees in making a fair and thorough social success. Aside from the attendance at the party there were enough tickets sold to make the affair an assured financial success.

Delicious punch and salted peanuts were served under the direction of McCarty-Kern, the caterers, and a fine program of music was played for the 22 dances by Salter's orchestra.

The arrangement committee was: Paul Rosinger, cigarmaker; Arnold Jorgensen, brewer; worker; Paul Strupack, carpenter, and John Quinn, sheet metal worker.

SOCIETY

CHILD CULTURE CLUB

The Child Culture club met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. C. A. Smurthwaite. Mrs. J. P. Mills gave a paper on "The Social and Religious Training of the Child," after which an interesting discussion was indulged in. Arrangements for the Mother's Day program were also discussed at some length.

A social hour during which appetizing refreshments were served was much enjoyed.

COREY-CHERRSTROM.

One of the prettiest and happiest of the recent home weddings occurred at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when Warren W. Corey, president and general manager of the Utah Construction company, gave his daughter, Miss Belle J. Corey, in marriage to Ernest G. Cherrstrom, a rising young business man of Chicago. The home was beautifully decorated with flowers and potted plants. The parlor, with white roses and pink roses, maiden-hair fern, marigolds and calla lilies, made a pretty scene. Over the broad front window a dainty canopy of maiden-hair fern and white marigolds was artistically arranged, at one side an exquisite basket of La France roses and maiden-hair fern, the handle of the basket tied with a graceful bow of dainty pink tulle, the gift of bride's father, made a lovely setting for the bridal scene. Beneath the graceful canopy of dainty green and white the Rev. William Webster Fleetwood of the Church of the Good Shepherd took his place and the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, was met at the altar by the groom, accompanied by Glenn Corey, nephew of the bride. Miss Lucille Wallace, bridesmaid, and sweet little Verna Corey, daintily attired in white and bearing in a lovely little flower basket the wedding ring emblem of never-ending love and fidelity, followed and took their respective places around the altar, where, on the white cushion adorned with marigolds, the bride and groom knelt and the beautiful and deeply impressive ring ceremony of the Episcopal church was pronounced while the late afternoon sun shone like an added benediction over their heads. During the ceremony a trio of young lady friends from Salt Lake, Mrs. E. D. Beltzer, Miss Molly Burris and Miss Florence Evans, at the piano, violin and cello, rendered Lohengrin's bridal chorus.

The bride wore a simply designed yet daintily elegant gown of white crepe de meteor, with court train and trimmed with real lace and pearls, the long white tulle veil held in place with small clusters of white sweet peas, the only jewel worn being the dainty bracelet set in diamonds and pearls, the gift of the groom, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and ferns. The bridesmaid wore pink crepe de chene and carried a shower of pink roses. Many pretty gowns were worn by the guests, among whom were three recently married young brides.

Toasts from old and young, with appropriate responses, were a pleasing feature. The dining room, where an elaborate wedding luncheon was served, was decorated with La France roses, the color scheme in dainty pink being carried out prettily also in the tempting menu. The elaborate table appointments were further brightened by pink candles effectively placed. The favors were tiny bouquets of violets and fern in the music room. American flags were graciously loaned. The hall was attractively decorated and in a pretty corner Miss Florence Browning served delicious fruit punch from a handsome cutglass punch bowl. The young ladies who charmingly and efficiently served luncheon were: Misses Josephine Larkin, Carrie Piche, Eva Swartzfager and Pauline Malan.

The father, brother and sister-in-law, Mrs. A. T. Corey, graciously welcomed the relatives and close friends who were bidden to the wedding. Numerous gifts were offered the happy couple as remembrances of the auspicious occasion. Cut glass, silver, hand-painted china, odd and strikingly handsome table pieces, pictures, beautifully embroidered table linens and a profusion of articles for the adornment of the home, the skillful product of the deft fingers of a long list of warm friends.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Mrs. C. J. Corey and Mr. M. O. Corey, Mrs. E. D. Beltzer, Miss Molly Burris, Miss Florence Evans and Mrs. R. C. Smead of Salt Lake; Mrs. Harry F. Cavanaugh of Helper, Thomas G. Wadsworth and Mrs. Agnes Wadsworth of Salt Lake City and among the Ogden guests present were: Mrs. E. O. Wattis, Mrs. Jane Wishart, Mr. F. A. Wishart, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Roberts, Misses Oerta Browning, Verna Bowman, Pearl Cragin, Ivy Gunnell, Myrtle Rhine, Mr. W. H. Wattis, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Larkin, E. A. Larkin, Miss Lucille Wallace, Mrs. Ethel Nalebitt Wilber, Lester H. Patterson, Mrs. L. S. Corey, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Peeny, Mrs. W. H. Baugman, Eli Spaulding, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Watson, Mrs. Frank Nalbitt, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Allison, Miss Myrtle E. Kenner, Florence Browning, Ray Corey, Earl Corey, Mrs. W. E. Corey, Verna Corey, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Corey, Vay Corey, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Fretwell, Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Wattis, Glenn Corey. After the wedding luncheon, during which choice musical numbers were rendered, a gay social hour was spent and at last, in spite of numerous hindrances, of the humorously inclined wedding party, Mr. and Mrs. Cherrstrom left for their honeymoon. They will be at home to their friends at 923 Twenty-third street after June 1. Mr. Cherrstrom is a member of a prominent family in Chicago, where he numbers his friends by the score, and Mrs. Cherrstrom has a wide circle of admiring friends in Utah and the west. Many messages, loving, congratulatory and facetious, were received from friends far and near.

COMPLAINT HELD TO BE DEFECTIVE

In Judge Howell's division of the district court this morning, the complaint in the appeal case of Ogden vs. Fred K. Brohm, on motion of the attorney for the defendant, was quashed and the case dismissed.

Brohm was charged with an assault on the person of William White, March 12, 1912, and he was found guilty in the Municipal court, a fine of $25 being imposed by Judge Reeder. An appeal was taken to the district court.

The facts in the case brought at the trial in the lower court were that Brohm gave Williams a beating after an altercation at the Brohm restaurant on Wall avenue between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth streets, a fifteen-year girl, the daughter of Brohm, being involved in the controversy.

Judge Howell held the complaint to be defective and he ordered the case dismissed.

EVENING OF MUSIC BY SCHOOL

The large auditorium at the Ogden High school was well filled last evening by interested patrons of the cantata, "The Building of the Ship," which was sung by fifty voices selected from the student body, under the direction of Prof. H. G. Smurthwaite, head of the music department of the school.

The cantata opened with an orchestral introduction and included the following vocal numbers:

Part I.
Introduction.
Chorus, "Build Me Straight."
Recitative, "The Merchant's Word," H. C. Hancock.
"Beautiful They Were, in Sooth," Marian Ellison, Nellie Ramey.
Chorus, "Recitative, 'Thus We Will Build This Ship.'"
Solo, "The Master's Word," Rosamond Laird.
Quartet, "Ah, How Skilled Grows the Hand," Rosamond Laird, Marian Ellison, Nellie Ramey, H. C. Hancock.
Recitative, "Thus With the Rising of the Sun," Nellie Ramey.
Chorus, "Happy, Thrice Happy," Part II.

"Day by Day the Vessel Grew," Rosamond Laird.
Chorus, "Build Me Straight."
Solo, "The Ocean Old," H. C. Hancock.
Recitative, "On the Deck," Marian Ellison.

Chorus, "The Prayer is Said," Rosamond Laird, Marian Ellison, Nellie Ramey, H. C. Hancock.
Recitative, "Then the Master, With a Gesture of Command," H. C. Hancock.
Chorus, "And Lo! From the Assembled Crowd,"

Solo, "How Beautiful She Is," Rosamond Laird.
Trio, "Sail Forth Into the Seat of Life," Rosamond Laird, Marian Ellison, Nellie Ramey.
Chorus and obligato, "Sail On, Nor Fear to Breach the Sea."

The Chorus.

The members of the chorus were: Lillian Flygare, Dorothy McGaw, Harriett Farley, Beatrice Young, Pansy Yarrington, Hannah Heyman, Kathryn Falck, Mildred Pardo, Mary Spencer, Margaret Ellis, Ethel Smyth, Lillian Beck, Dorothy Beuschell, Ruth McElheran, Ruth Wattis, Clara Doherty, Cella Farley, Edella Dalton, Fern Elliott, Lorna Jenkins, Ethel Thomas, Susie Simister, Mary Parmley, Nora Edlund, Lola Stone, Sophie Kline, Leona Krumpelman, Cleone Rich, Edna Wattis, Garnet Wheelwright, Winifred Emmett, Val Browning, Don Hastings, Jesse Holther, Ray Allison, Milton Boyle, Wm. Baker, Loyal Griffin, George Reeve, C. Jones, Arthur Evans.

At the piano, Vera Lillian Frey.

The work of the soloists was especially well received.
Miss Nellie Ramey, contralto, sings with artistic charm, displaying a beautifully cultured voice, fully adequate for the demands made upon it, with poise and almost perfect enunciation. Her rendition of the recitative, "Thus, With the Rising of the Sun," was a finely finished bit of vocalization.

The Misses Rosamond Laird and Marian Ellison, mezzo-sopranos, two promising young singers, carried their parts with credit. Both possess voices of good range and power, and, with proper training, should win a place of their own in the ranks of the city's soloists.

The major portion of the solo work was ably carried by Heber C. Hancock, baritone. Mr. Hancock sings with an ease and naturalness that is quite refreshing, seeming never to reach the limit of either range or power in his singing. This feature in particular promises a future for Mr. Hancock. In his recitatives he also displayed good histrionic ability.

The choral work was well carried out under the baton of Prof. Smurthwaite and added to the charm of the production. The closing ensemble was especially well done, Miss Laird carrying the solo work with good effect.

Mr. Smurthwaite's effort in arranging and directing the affair is worthy of much praise and should result in making the music department a factor for good in the school.
